WILHELM CRAZY DIPLOMATS SAY

TOO MANY OFFERS TO BECOME SACRIFICES FOR HIM INDICATES SUCH IS THE CASE.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The action on the part of friends and relatives of the former kaiser in asking that they be permitted to stand in his stead has given rise to gossip in diplomatic circles here that William of Hohenzollern may now be mentally unbalanced.

Thus far, von Bethmann-Hollweg, former imperial chancellor, General von Hindenburg, supreme commander of the German army, and five of the sons of the former monarch have come forward with the request that they be put on trial rather than their wild emperor. Their haste is deemed suspicious and may be actioned, it is said, by a desire to avoid the humiliation and shame that would be the lot of the old regime.

Can Always Rely on Grandma.

Olliver was in the habit of going to his grandma for favors, and was never disappointed. While playing with the other boys of the neighborhood their football came apart, and they thought they could sew it together if they only had a piece of shoestring. Olliver came to the rescue. "Let's go and ask grandma for a shoestring," he suggested. "You can get about anything you ask for over at grandma's."

Keeping Cider Sweet.

To keep cider sweet place in each barrel immediately on making, mustard, four ounces; salt, one ounce, and ground chalk, one ounce. Shake well. Or cider may be preserved sweet by canning in airtight cans after the manner of preserving fruit. The liquid should be first settled and racked off from the dregs, but fermentation must not be allowed to commence before canning or it will not keep.

ADA MAN TALKS TO N. Y. BY LONG DISTANCE PHONE

C. F. Carter of New York City called B. H. Epperson on long distance this morning and held a conversation. So far as the News reporter knows, this is the first and only time that an Ada man has talked this far.

King Victor Emmanuel Says the Profiteers Must Cease Their Nautiness

By the Associated Press

LONDON, July 8.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy has issued a decree that all profiteers will in the future be fined 10,000 lire or sentenced to from three months to three years in prison and in addition will suffer confiscation of goods, according to a Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company. The dispatch also states that the general strike was declared in Naples Monday. At Palermo the police arrested 400 ex-convicts suspected of being responsible for recent disorders.

Restrictions Removed on Most French Imports

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 8.—An official announcement is made here by the French High Commission in explanation of two decrees recently issued by the French government under which restrictions on imports into France were partly removed.

Under a decree becoming effective June 20, the prohibition of imports was lifted on all merchandise not enumerated in the decree. The principal articles of merchandise which remained prohibited for the time being, except under license, are enumerated by the announcement as follows:

Cold-storage meats, carded and combed wool, cheese, spelt and meslin in seed of flour, (drinks?), oil, potassium, chemical products, derivatives of oil-tar other than those obtained directly by distillation of the tar dyes derived from tar, perfumes, twines with the exception of binding twine, textiles, news-print paper, dressed or made-up furs, gold or silver wares, jewelry, clocks and watches, arms, powders and munitions, musical instruments and their parts, various articles of luxury, tobacco and other materials prohibited by special law such as saccharine, distilled liquors, chemical matches, etc.

The second decree, gives the table of surtaxes ad valorem to be levied in addition to the specific duties on taxes merchandise.

The rate of surtaxes varies with the nature of the products under consideration and according to whether the general tariff or the minimum tariff is to be applied; it ranges between 5 per cent and 20 or 30 per cent and occasionally 40 per cent.

For example: The surtax on typewriters is 10 per cent, general tariff, and 5 per cent minimum tariff, that on automobiles is 20 per cent general tariff, and 10 per cent minimum tariff for those which are not already taxed ad valorem. For this latter, the tax is 70 per cent. It has not been increased.

Ice Company and Tabernacle.

You have been wondering how you could get ice during the tabernacle revival since certain streets are to be roped during certain hours both by day and night. The Tabernacle Committee desires to announce that ice trucks and wagons will be allowed to come from the plant to Ninth street and up Ninth street to Broadway at all hours. It is also announced that persons having to get ice may at all times reach the plant by Broadway, Ninth and down Renzie to the plant. We represent the citizenship of Ada in this matter and would not do anything to block any man's business or any families comfort.—Announced for Tabernacle Committee.

AUSTRIAN PEACE DELAYED WEEK

COUNCIL OF FIVE DECIDED TO GIVE FURTHER CONSIDERATION TO TERRITORY AND BOUNDARIES.

By the Associated Press

PARIS, July 8.—The Council of Five's decision to devote further time to the consideration of Austrian territorial questions has resulted in the Austrian peace treaty being held up after the printers had set the type and rendered proofs to the council. The boundaries question will be taken up tomorrow, but it is stated the treaty will not be ready for presentation before the end of the week at the earliest.

BUSINESS COLLEGE TO HAVE LARGE QUARTERS

Mr. A. Stauffer has leased the upper story of the new Starritt building on East Main street, and is having an immense sign placed over the building. Mr. Stauffer is proprietor of the Stauffer business college and is also in charge of the business training courses of the Normal.

The Stauffer college will move to their new location August 1st. They have leased the upper story of the building for a term of five years. The building is 50 by 140 feet, which will give the business college room to take care of a large enrollment. They will employ four teachers to start and will add to the faculty as the enrollment increases. They will be able to take an enrollment of 200, which will make the business college here one of the largest in the state.

Mr. A. Stauffer has been in Ada for the past five years, during which time he has been a teacher at the Normal. He says he has unlimited confidence in Ada, which confidence is growing daily and this is why he is establishing a business college of such proportions. He will in future give his entire time to this college, severing his connection with the Normal at the end of the present term.

PROGRESS REPORTED ON SCHOOL BUILDING

Supt. J. E. Hickman reports much progress on the new school building on the East side. Two car loads of brick and other material was received yesterday and the workmen are coming up with the building as rapidly as could be asked.

Mr. Hickman says they will easily be ready for the building to be used at the opening of the fall term.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT MADE SPECIAL ORDER TODAY

OBJECT TO WAGE REDUCTION; RAILWAY OFFICIALS SAY THEY WILL USE NON-UNION MEN.

By the Associated Press

DENVER, Colo., July 8.—Street car service here has been entirely paralyzed today by a strike of 1,200 trainmen and shop men of the Denver Tramway company. The strike was authorized after midnight, becoming effective at 4 o'clock this morning, following the announcement by the management of the company of a reduction of the wages now being paid the men.

The Tramway company officials said an effort will be made to operate the cars with non-union labor.

Oklahoma Woman and Her Child Killed in Texas

PARIS, Tex., July 8.—While Mrs. M. H. Ausmus of Garvin, Ok., who was visiting her father, J. W. Finch at Howland, was driving half a mile west of that place at 6 o'clock this afternoon in an automobile with her five children and Mrs. Dixie Lattimore and little daughter of T. B. Tugwell of Roxton, the car began to skid going down a hill at a high rate of speed and turned over in a ditch.

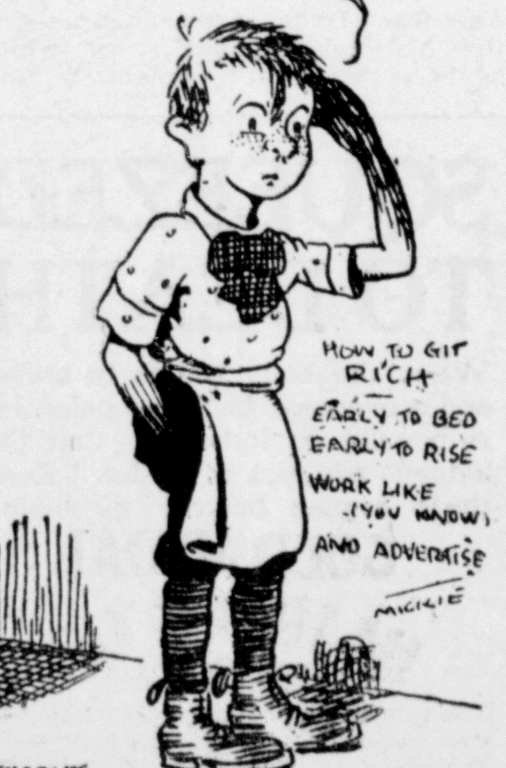

Mrs. Ausmus and the youngest child were killed. Two other children received broken arms and another a broken collar bone. Miss Tugwell had an arm broken and Mrs. Lattimore was severely cut and bruised about the head and face. The Ausmus child, who was killed, had her skull crushed and Mrs. Ausmus was crushed to death under the automobile. All the injured were brought to a Paris sanitarium.

Serajevo Honors Man Who Started World Wide War

SERAJEVO, Bosnia, July 7.—The little town, where the world conflagration had its origin in the assassination of the Austrian arch-duke, Francis Ferdinand, five years ago today, celebrated the anniversary with a monster parade, the center of which was a flower bedecked hearse containing the remains of the student Prinzip, who killed the Austrian heir. The remains had been exhumed from the original grave in Vienna and were solemnly reburied today in the local cemetery.

EMBASSIES ARE SEIZED BY REDS

LEGATIONS AND CONSULATES ENTERED AND THOSE IN CHARGE ARRESTED, IS REPORT FROM RUSSIA.

By the Associated Press

Helsingfors, July 8.—It is reported that all foreign embassies, legations, and consulates in Petrograd have been occupied by the Bolsheviks. The archives of each embassy has been seized and the men in charge have been arrested and handed over to the Extraordinary Commission dealing with espionage charges against the Soviet government.

BUSINESS PICKS UP IN POLICE COURT

Business picked up materially in police circles last night. Chas. Herrington is the man who caused the excitement.

Herrington is a carpenter living on West 13th street. The mayor says he got more of the elixir of life than was good for him, but still was not satisfied, and started to town to get more. His wife informed Mr. Herrington that she was going to follow him and give the man trouble that furnished the wild Iranian. Mayor Kitchens says Herrington turned around and struck his wife a terrific blow over the right eye with his fist which caused quite a swollen head and much blood.

In the meantime Mrs. Herrington's two boys about twelve years of age were coming to their mother's help and one of them struck an ice pick into Herrington's side. Bill Elam who lives across the street from Herrington also saw the performance and made a bee line for the scene of action. He took Mr. Herrington in charge and marched him to the city hall where he turned him over to John Rawls. Herrington was placed in jail where he remained for the night.

This morning the case came to trial and the mayor fined Herrington $20 and costs. He has not yet paid the fine and is now in the city bastille where he will serve out the fine unless it is paid.

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY IS OUT

The summer issue of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's directory is off the press and is being delivered on the streets today.

The directory is printed in the same style as previous issues and is filled with advertisements from Ada's leading merchants.

The new directory carries 1273 names, which shows there are quite a number of our citizens who have telephone connection.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IS EIGHTY YEARS OLD

By the Associated Press

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller celebrated his eightieth birthday at his Poncautic Hills estate yesterday, so he could depart for Seal Harbor, Maine, today. He is eighty years old today. The guests at his party included Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., their children and about one hundred friends.

PARIS, July 8.—The approval of a plan for a concerted attack upon Petrograd by Finnish troops and the entire forces of Admiral Kolchack at Omsk was given today by the Council of Five. A joint note has been sent to the military attaches of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy at Helsingfors, instructing them to support the Finnish government if it is decided to accede to the Kolchack request to assist in the campaign. There is no indication that the allies intended further aid of the anti-bolshevik forces, but the present action is taken as a sign that they will see the Kolchack movement through.

President Wilson On American Soil Lands in N. Y.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 8.—Escorted by a fleet of four dreadnaughts and thirty-six destroyers from the Atlantic fleet, the transport George Washington, bringing President Wilson from France, passed the quarantine and moved on to New York harbor at 1:30 this afternoon. The presidential salute from the warships was the first of the welcoming ceremonies awaiting the chief executive.

Lying in the harbor were forty-four warships headed by Admiral Henry B. Wilson's flagship, the Pennsylvania, assigned to join the port harbor escort. Immediately after a short address at Carnegie Hall, the president will board a special train for Washington.

Monroe Salisbury Today.

Spectacular snow scenes revolving around a thrilling toboggan accident on a steep hillside, in which one of the principals really was badly bruised, are a feature of "The Blinding Trail," the new Monroe Salisbury film play coming to the American today.

Paul Powell directed the picture which deals with the Northwoods and its people, among whom are Big Jim McKenzie, boss lumberman; his employer, Halverson, the millionaire lumber dealer; Halverson's daughter, Helen, a city product in every luxury-loving essential; and the latter's "poor cousin."

The triangle formed by McKenzie and the two girls passes as another character, Jean DuBrey, impersonated by Arthur Maude, the eminent character actor, enters. It becomes a quadrangle with McKenzie, Helen, who becomes his mis-mated wife; Adèle, "the poor relation," and DuBrey, the assistant camp boss; and the characters.

The story written by Stuart Paton who produced "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and John B. Clymer is an unusually powerful one and the execution in such capable hands is praiseworthy.

One of the most appealing screen fights ever witnessed is the climax of the play. In it Salisbury, as the blind McKenzie, Maude and Claire Anderson, the Helen Halverson of the story, participate and bring the plot to a smashingly logical culmination.

Alfred Allen, the character actor; Johnnie Cooke, comedian, and others have strong parts in the picture.

R-34 TO REST AWHILE BEFORE FLYING BACK

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 8.—About 48 hours delay in the start on the return flight of the R-34 was recommended by the weather bureau in a message to the dirigible's commander at Mineola, N. Y. today. The message was conveyed by the American navy.

NEW OIL WELL SHOT SATURDAY

ONE MILLION FEET OF GAS AND 20 BARRELS OF OIL FROM FIRST WELL.

A new oil field has been found in Pontotoc county, and a new well was brought in in the field last Saturday night.

The new field is in the Roff country. As well as the News could find out the well is located about three miles northeast of Roff. It is said a well was shot there and that they have a flow of about 20 barrels of oil and about one million feet of gas. It is said the company in charge of the well will pump the well and will begin at once to drill another well.

BOLSHEVIKI ARE PLANNING TO LEAVE PETROGRAD SOON

LONDON, July 8.—Definite information that the Bolsheviks are planning an attack on Petrograd has been received in official circles here. The decision to quit the capital was said to have been violently opposed by certain elements of the Bolshevik government.

Washington In Receipt of Statement Relative to John Correll Murder

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A statement signed by Mrs. Mary Correll and her 16-year-old son Joseph, of Ada, Okla., has been received by the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico from Tampico. It relates how John W. Correll, the husband and father was murdered by Mexicans on June 16 while trying to defend his wife, who was then maltreated in a most revolting manner by the Mexicans. The boy was shot at, but escaped. Following is the signed statement: "Tampico, Tamaulipas, June 22, 1919.—My father, John W. Correll, my mother, Mary Correll, and myself, Joe Correll, came to Mexico about two months ago from our home at Ada, Okla. We had read in newspaper articles and interviews that conditions in Mexico were again normal, and we thought, judging from these, that we would be safe. "Upon arrival here my father purchased a tractor and other agricultural implements and we proceeded to get our land at Colonia, which is about 20 miles northwest of Tampico, in shape so as to get in a crop. "Slow Husband, Attacked Wife. "Last Monday, June 16, at about 10 in the morning, my father, mother and myself were at our home when about 40 men (Mexicans) came there and searched our home, taking all our clothing, all the food we had, and also our rifle which my father had. After doing this they all left but four men. These four men went into the house and tore down all the curtains, shelves, etc. They afterwards marched me around on the outside of the house, punching me with their rifles, when I made a break for the brush. They then fired at me as I ran, one bullet grazing the collar of my coat. They then commenced to maltreat my mother, and my father went to protect her, when they killed him, shooting him once through the head and once through the breast. They followed me to the brush but did not find me. They robbed everything we had in the house, including the bedding and silverware. I cannot describe the horrible treatment my mother suffered after my father was killed. "We are Americans. My mother and myself were born at Ada, Okla.; my father in Tennessee, but I do not know the name of the place. I am 16 years of age. As soon as we can dispose of our agricultural implements we will leave for our home at Ada Okla. "Joe Correll."

Diplomat Belittled Gould. A letter referring to this crime was received by C. F. de Ganahl, president of the Southern Oil & Transport corporation of No. 120 Broadway, from a correspondent in Tampico, whose name cannot be given without exposing him to risk of reprisal, which said among other things: "The details connected with the assault on Mrs. Correll are revolting in the extreme. This band, who are nothing but bandits, have had their headquarters at Mesquite, about 50 kilometers up the Tamesi river, for many months, and have never been molested. About six weeks ago R. A. Bishop and William Bell, who were up there to look at some mules, were captured by these bandits, and had to put up 300 pesos to get away. American ranches at Manual and Chocoy have been raided and robbed by these people a dozen times within the last six months and no effort has been made to capture them. "Now, right on top of this murder of an American citizen and the brutal outrage of an American woman, there is published in the very district in which these crimes are committed an official statement by First Secretary Summerline of the American embassy in the City of Mexico that no attention should be taken of the resolution of Representative Gould to investigate the outrages upon Americans. "This is certainly a declaration of an open season upon Americans. Some members of the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico propose to lay this crime, which is typical of a long list of similar affairs, before the executive committee at its meeting next Thursday, with the request that the association make it a test case to ascertain whether or not American citizens are to receive protection from their government. "Inquiries here disclosed the fact that the Correll case has been reported to the state department and that the department has made representations regarding it to the local authorities at Tampico and to the federal government at Mexico City.

ALLEN OIL FIELD GETS TWO NEW WELLS ADA MEN GREETED BY NEW MEXICO CITIZENS

ALLEN, Okla., July 7.—A great deal of interest is being manifested at present in the oil game in the Allen field and preparations are being made to put down several deep tests. The acreage is being rapidly gobbled up and big development is expected. The Missouri Oil company shot their No. 2 on the Joe Gilmore farm, 5-14-8, the last of the week, at a depth of 737 feet. The well has 27 feet of sand and is estimated at 150 barrels. Schaffer, Bell & Lawrence brought in a good well on the Holman farm Monday. They are in the neighborhood of 15 wells drilling in the field and a number of locations have been made. The Homaoka Oil company is down 125 feet on Harjo No. 35, in 2-5-8-8; the K. C. Oil company No. 2, Gilmore in 14-5-8-8, is rigging up; Humble Cipsy No. 8, Crabtree farm, in the northeast corner of the southwest of the southwest of 27-5-8-8, is rigging up; K. C. Oil company has a rig up for Case No. 13 in the northeast of 27-5-8-8; Homaoka Oil company is drilling at 940 feet on the M. Shields No. 1 in the northwest of 33-5-8-8; Texas Co. is shut down at 1,600 feet on Williams No. 8, in northwest of 44-5-8-8; No. 9, same farm, is drilling at 710 feet and American Oil and Refinery Co. No. 1, Thomas Carney farm, in the northwest of the southeast of 17-4-7-8, is still a rig.

FOOLING WITH HEALTH SERIOUS.

I have frequently asked druggists "What do you push in a blood medicine?" The answer usually came: "The kind I can make the most money on." My answer has always been, "Not me." I have succeeded pretty well and I have always recommended the one that I had found by experience to be the best and the one would be willing to take myself or give to members of my own family. I have never offered the public a medicine that we do not use at home. This is why I can offer "Number 40 For the Blood," with a clear conscience; we have not only tried it on thousands of others but on ourselves. We take it in all cases where a blood medicine is needed no matter in what form it shows itself and we get splendid results in constipation, kidney, stomach and liver troubles. I firmly believe if every one would begin in the spring and take "Number 40" they would escape malaria and fevers in all forms. J. C. Mendenhall, 40 years a druggist, Evansville, Ind. THE RED UMBRELLA

By JACK LAWTON.

The old lady in the dressing gown raised an imperious finger. "You may now go to luncheon, Miss Barrie," she said. And Miss Barrie, who had been changed by fortune's wand from merry Betty Berrie of Willowdale into a serious minded "companion," closed the desk over various lavender tinted notes, and gazed through the window. "It is raining," she murmured. "I shall get a wetting." "Nonsense!" ejaculated the old lady, "you will take my umbrella." "But it is such a beautiful thing," Betty demurred—"If anything should happen to it—" "What could happen to an umbrella between here and the restaurant?" her employer caustically remarked. So graciously thanking her, the "companion" picked up the umbrella and went. At least "companion" was the word under which Betty's position had been designated in the want columns of the city paper, which found its way to her village home. When she had closed the lately desolated home and started out upon the path of independence, Betty found that being "companion" in her case, meant, a combination of nurse and secretary as well. And doing her very best, met with slight reward. She wondered wistfully, as she trudged toward the restaurant, why it should happen that the formerly cherished daughter of the old village doctor should be walking wet pavements, with no rubbers to protect her thin shoes, while other girls raised no more carefully flew past in luxurious cars. These girls were rich furs, often their own hands controlled the shining machines, while they laughed back in confident happiness at others as fortunate as they. Some were married, Betty was sure of this, from the proud proprietary air of their masculine escorts. And the new thought came to her, that she would never ride, a proud wife in her own automobile. If, indeed, she married at all it would be to some toiling man whose humble home would necessitate the constant labor of her hands. "No," reflected Betty, "every day you look at it, life's luxuries are not for me. And after all—" her smile flashed out at the thought—"the rain is not raining on me, and I'm carrying an expensive umbrella." It was a beautiful umbrella. The imperious old lady's wealthy daughter had given it to her as a gift. Her despondent mood had suddenly vanished—it was good to be young and alive, it was good to be of use. Through the gloom the restaurant lights beckoned across the way. Betty started to cross the road, then drew back at the warning horn of an auto. She realized, as a girl threw back an apologetic smile, that one of the favored ones had almost run her down. She must be more careful, the alarming scream of the auto horn seemed still to ring confusedly in her ears. She had a glimpse of a white-faced terror-stricken man at the wheel, and then desperately Betty clutched the pearl handle of the red silk umbrella, pushing with all her strength its frail protection against the black object which almost crushed her. Almost—but at that very moment, the brakes did their work. Panting like a frustrated animal the automobile stood still, while the white-faced man opened the door, and sprang to Betty's side. "You are not hurt?" he gasped, "it—did not—hit you?" Without awaiting an answer, he picked her up quickly in his arms and seated her in the car. "Didn't you hear me sound the horn?" he gently persisted. Then out of her vast relief, Betty laughed. "Oh! I heard horns," she said, "everywhere. I do not blame you. You see—I'm from the country." The man heaved a sigh of relief, then he also smiled. "And don't you know," he added whimsically, "that it's useless to try to stop automobiles with a red signal; a train might stop perhaps, but not a machine." "It was not useless in this case," Betty told him, then she looked down in consternation. "It is broken," she said aghast, "smashed to pieces. It was a borrowed umbrella, and I never could buy one like it." "As for that," said the man, he was busily writing his name and address across a page from a note book—"I will be glad to replace the umbrella. That's my plain duty. When you find one just like it, send the bill to me. And now—shall I drive you home?" Betty was reading with wide eyes the man's scribbled name. It was a name of prominence which she had often read quoted upon matters of authority. At her hesitation, he turned again toward her, and smiled. "Or," he suggested "shall we go and purchase that umbrella now?" "If you please," Betty gratefully agreed. And that ride, leaning back against the soft cushions, was to be the first of many. For as Betty rides now, at the side of the driver, he wears the proud proprietary air of the husband, and tucked in some place near them both is always carried a red silk umbrella.

At least "companion" was the word under which Betty's position had been designated in the want columns of the city paper, which found its way to her village home. When she had closed the lately desolated home and started out upon the path of independence, Betty found that being "companion" in her case, meant, a combination of nurse and secretary as well. And doing her very best, met with slight reward. She wondered wistfully, as she trudged toward the restaurant, why it should happen that the formerly cherished daughter of the old village doctor should be walking wet pavements, with no rubbers to protect her thin shoes, while other girls raised no more carefully flew past in luxurious cars. These girls were rich furs, often their own hands controlled the shining machines, while they laughed back in confident happiness at others as fortunate as they. Some were married, Betty was sure of this, from the proud proprietary air of their masculine escorts. And the new thought came to her, that she would never ride, a proud wife in her own automobile. If, indeed, she married at all it would be to some toiling man whose humble home would necessitate the constant labor of her hands. "No," reflected Betty, "every day you look at it, life's luxuries are not for me. And after all—" her smile flashed out at the thought—"the rain is not raining on me, and I'm carrying an expensive umbrella." It was a beautiful umbrella. The imperious old lady's wealthy daughter had given it to her as a gift. Her despondent mood had suddenly vanished—it was good to be young and alive, it was good to be of use. Through the gloom the restaurant lights beckoned across the way. Betty started to cross the road, then drew back at the warning horn of an auto. She realized, as a girl threw back an apologetic smile, that one of the favored ones had almost run her down. She must be more careful, the alarming scream of the auto horn seemed still to ring confusedly in her ears. She had a glimpse of a white-faced terror-stricken man at the wheel, and then desperately Betty clutched the pearl handle of the red silk umbrella, pushing with all her strength its frail protection against the black object which almost crushed her. Almost—but at that very moment, the brakes did their work. Panting like a frustrated animal the automobile stood still, while the white-faced man opened the door, and sprang to Betty's side. "You are not hurt?" he gasped, "it—did not—hit you?" Without awaiting an answer, he picked her up quickly in his arms and seated her in the car. "Didn't you hear me sound the horn?" he gently persisted. Then out of her vast relief, Betty laughed. "Oh! I heard horns," she said, "everywhere. I do not blame you. You see—I'm from the country." The man heaved a sigh of relief, then he also smiled. "And don't you know," he added whimsically, "that it's useless to try to stop automobiles with a red signal; a train might stop perhaps, but not a machine." "It was not useless in this case," Betty told him, then she looked down in consternation. "It is broken," she said aghast, "smashed to pieces. It was a borrowed umbrella, and I never could buy one like it." "As for that," said the man, he was busily writing his name and address across a page from a note book—"I will be glad to replace the umbrella. That's my plain duty. When you find one just like it, send the bill to me. And now—shall I drive you home?" Betty was reading with wide eyes the man's scribbled name. It was a name of prominence which she had often read quoted upon matters of authority. At her hesitation, he turned again toward her, and smiled. "Or," he suggested "shall we go and purchase that umbrella now?" "If you please," Betty gratefully agreed. And that ride, leaning back against the soft cushions, was to be the first of many. For as Betty rides now, at the side of the driver, he wears the proud proprietary air of the husband, and tucked in some place near them both is always carried a red silk umbrella.

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, Prohibitionist, Abroad

(Kansas City Star.)

William E. Johnson, a former Kansas Citian, known everywhere as "Pussyfoot" Johnson, probably had more to do with "putting national prohibition over" than any man in the country. He was the veritable field marshal of the Prohibition forces. You'll not find his name in "Who's Who," for he usually works under cover and stays in the background. He was a stalwart soldier in the ranks even back in the days when Clara Hoffman, Ella Morris and Mrs. Ess were pioneering the movement hereabouts. Johnson is of strong, athletic build, slightly bald, and nearly 60. His two boys were with the army of occupation in France. He lived in Kansas City with his family during most of the '90s near Eighth street and Troost avenue. During much of that period he was western agent and correspondent of the Voice, published by Funk & Wagnalls, New York; the Literary Digest, then the national organ of the rather feeble Prohibition party. Johnson never lost faith in the ultimate success of the "dry" forces and of a nation-wide dry country. He fought faithfully and was imbued with the typical zeal of the Crusaders of old. He came here from Lincoln, Neb., where he knew W. J. Bryan well, and it is said, inspired Bryan strongly with Prohibition principles, thus neutralizing "Lewey" Robidoux's efforts in an opposite direction whenever W. J. B. would arrive at the old union station and step across Union avenue. However, in the famous presidential campaign of 1896 the dry candidate polled such a poor vote that either Johnson became discouraged or the Voice grew feeble, and there was a disconnection. Johnson then carried on his propaganda in the columns of a sensational Sunday paper published here, his specialty being the writing about the local saloons and breweries, showing their intimate and unsavory relations with crime and politics. Later he left for New York, went on the editorial staff of the Voice and continued to whoop it up for "Prohibition and Prosperity." About 1902 the government sent him on a special mission to the Philippine Islands, principally in connection with the liquor problem, and he served for over a year with great satisfaction and, incidentally, unearthed many post-bellum frauds. Soon after his return the Presbyterian church of the United States of America engaged him as a traveling temperance organizer and investigator a few years, covering the entire western country. But the position in which he was destined to achieve a nation-wide reputation lay just ahead of him. The United States government commissioned him to take the Indian Territory for his field and suppress the illicit liquor traffic there, where "bootlegging" among the Indians was brewing a national scandal. It was a big job, but Johnson was equal to it. He not only suppressed, but utterly destroyed, the traffic and caused scores of the mercenary violators of the law to be placed in prison mostly through Judge Parker's court at Fort Smith, Ark. Johnson was so smooth and foxy in unearthing whisky caches and pouncing on the bold violators, snooping around on them when least expected, that he was soon dubbed "Pussyfoot" Johnson and he was thus cartooned and written up constantly in the territory and Oklahoma. The New York Sunday papers, Harper's Weekly and two or three magazines, later gave profuse pictorial "write-ups" of Johnson and his picturesque career. Johnson's forays on the bootleggers continued for several years, despite many attempts to bribe him or to "get his scalp" politically. He smashed fixtures and conveyances as fast as he seized them. In his raids he was relentless and indiscriminating. Naturally he made many enemies; there was constant turmoil and the wires to Washington were kept warm in appeals to call him off, that he was rash, hot-headed, misguided, overzealous, a regular "bull in a china shop" or rather a liquor shop. He got some rather tart letters from President Taft's commissioner of Indian affairs which he didn't appear to relish and soon resigned in disgust and the lawless elements in Indian Territory and Oklahoma were supremely happy again. He was a big factor in making Oklahoma a prohibition state, at the start, and recently wrote a two-page story for the American Issue, national organ of the Anti-Saloon League, of which he is a staff correspondent, of how sent to the peace conference at Paris a plan to prohibit liquor traffic in countries inhabited by backward races; to protect all countries in exercise of their rights to prohibit traffic in intoxicants and narcotic drugs, and to provide for an international bureau for the investigation of the evil effects of the liquor traffic throughout the world. Johnson is now "somewhere in London," judging from a letter received last week from the editor of the American Issue, saying, among other things: "Pussyfoot" Johnson is in London now and writes its interesting stories occasionally. He is the Anti-Saloon League's representative in Great Britain and went across primarily to help in the fight in Scotland, where local option will be submitted in 1920." Judging from conditions I saw in Glasgow and Edinburgh before the war broke out, Johnson may have the biggest job of his life before him in Scotland.

Suppose there were no more Advertisements

Just imagine for a minute that some power could stop all advertising. How would that affect you?

It would cut you off from all direct, commercial news about things you need and use in your every-day life. Somebody might be selling a new, better, more economical food; or a utensil that would save money and time; or an article that would add greatly to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but you would never know it.

Merchants and manufacturers would be unable to tell you about new and better things. They would thus find it hard to put these things on the market, and often would not try.

Merchants, unable to tell you what they had to offer you, could not take the risk of buying goods for which they might have no customers.

"It pays to advertise." And advertising pays not only the advertiser and publisher, but PAYS YOU TOO. It keeps you informed about the things you need in order to live a profitable, happy and useful life in this age of progress.

The Covenanter Letters

Being a Discussion of the Covenant of the League of Nations by Eminent Men.

Today's Letter Takes Up

ARTICLE III The Assembly.

This is the larger organ of the League, the one in which the members are represented, by three delegates apiece if they please, so that if all the forty-five countries named in the Annex to the Covenant should join the League, and each of them should send its full complement of three, the Assembly would fill 135 seats. Since statesmen and others in all lands have a strong desire to be of service on such occasions it is probable that the delegates present will not be much less than this, a number well fitted for debate, but not for confidential interchange of opinions on delicate matters.

Actual Functions Limited.

The Assembly will, indeed, probably attract more popular attention than any other organ of the League; and yet its actual functions, which are to be found scattered through various articles of the Covenant, are extremely limited. Besides regulating its own procedure and appointing its committees, it is empowered to select the four smaller states to be represented on the Council, to approve of enlargements of the Council, to confirm the selection of the Secretary General, to report upon disputes between nations referred to it by the Council or by either of the disputants, to advise the reconsideration by members of the League of treaties that have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions endangering the peace of the world, and by a two-thirds vote to admit new members to the League. Except, therefore, for some definite powers relating to the organization and membership of the League, its authority in international affairs is confined to making a report in certain disputes, and giving some advice to the members.

What then is the meaning of the third clause of the article which provides that "the Assembly may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League, or affecting the peace of the world." Clearly this does not mean that it can deal only with the subjects to which its authority extends by the provisions of the Covenant, for that would reduce its field of discussion to almost nothing. Nor, on the other hand, does it mean that the Assembly can take action binding upon the members in all matters within the sphere of action of the League, because specific provisions are made for dealing with those matters, and the interpretation suggested would render all such provisions futile. The Assembly would have power to overrule them all. Moreover, Article V declares that except where otherwise expressly provided decisions of the Assembly or Council shall require the consent of all the members of the League represented at the meeting. But a unanimous decision of 45 countries can never be attained where there is and serious difference of opinion, and where there is not it is needless. To authorize the Assembly to take unanimous action, on any subject they pleased would, therefore, be simply conferring a power that cannot be used.

Importance of Discussion.

In view of the other specific provisions of the Covenant the intention of the clause is perfectly clear. It means that the Assembly is authorized not to decide, but to discuss, all matters within the sphere of action of the League or that affect the peace of the world. In this it is the successor to the conference at the Hague. Save for the very limited authority expressly vested in it the function of the Assembly is discussion, and that is of immense importance. The mere fact that any nation, however small, can bring its grievances and its aspirations before a general body of representatives gathered from all the free, orderly and civilized peoples of the earth is of inestimable value. It is a fertile means of creating that enlightened public opinion on international questions which has been heralded as one of the chief objects of a League.

International distrust often arises from misunderstanding which can be removed by open conference; and points of contact are points of mutual comprehension. The influence of external public opinion may well tend to enlarge, and thus reduce what is bad in excessive chauvinism without lessening healthy patriotic spirit.

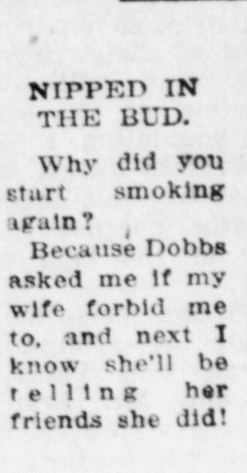

An Inquest of the World.

Disraeli once said that Parliament was the great inquest of the nation. The Assembly of the League may well become the great inquest of the world; the body where plans for the betterment of mankind are advocated, and where codes of international law are prepared and debated.

It may be observed that although each member of the League is entitled to send three representatives to the Assembly the voting is by states. Some people have desired a great parliament of the peoples of the earth, but as yet that is utopian. The organization of the modern world is built upon nationality, and whatever a remote future may bring forth, at present peace and order, justice, progress and liberty must be based upon a concert of free nations.

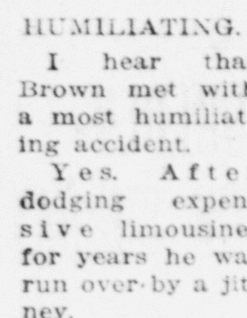

HIS TURN.
I've decided not to get an opera cloak or a new ball gown this year.
Why not?
My husband is looking so shabby I think he simply must have a new suit.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.
Why did you start smoking again?
Because Dobbs asked me if my wife forbid me to, and next I know she'll be telling her friends she did!

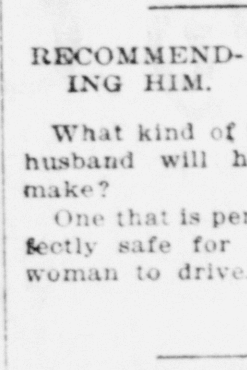

A GOOD REASON.
"Why don't you take a house permanently instead of carrying that house on your back?"
"Cheaper to move than pay rent, my boy!"

HUMILIATING.
I hear that Brown met with a most humiliating accident.
Yes. After dodging expensive limousines for years he was run over by a jitney.

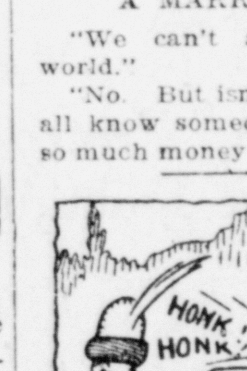

A NATURAL QUERY.
Duck—Now I wonder what kind of a bird laid those funny yellow eggs!

RECOMMENDING HIM.
What kind of a husband will he make?
One that is perfectly safe for a woman to drive.

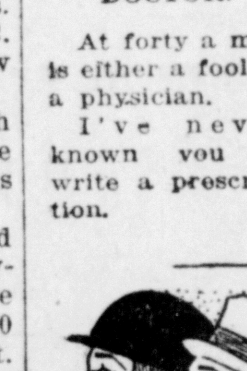

A MARRIED COUPLE.
"We can't all be rich in this world."
"No. But isn't it fine that we can all know someone who hasn't quite so much money as we have?"

THE IDEA.
Miss Goose—That must be that silly Gander trying to flirt with me.

HE WASN'T A DOCTOR.
At forty a man is either a fool or a physician.
I've never known you to write a prescription.

A RARE CASE.
You remember Johnny Jones, the bad boy everybody said would surely come to a bad end?
Yes; what of him?
Nothing, except that in his case for once everybody was right.

Tiger Is Afraid of Man Until Hunger Drives Him To Make Attack in Open

The name "man-eater" requires a word of explanation. Normally the tiger is afraid of man; but, when age begins to stiffen his muscles—probably about the fifteenth year—the tiger experiences an ever-increasing difficulty in seizing the small and agile denizens of the jungle who constitute his normal food. Hunger soon grips him, and, spurred on by his appetite, even his instinctive terror of man can no longer keep him from prowling around the villages.

The beginnings of the new career of "man-eater" are comparatively harmless," writes Paul Dreary in the Wide World Magazine. "He carries off a chicken here, a dog farther on. Emboldened by his success, he begins to watch from a distance the field laborers, whose naked bodies glisten above the pools in the rice field. Then, one evening, he springs upon some unfortunate native—and the thing is done! He has tasted human flesh, and found the getting of it comparatively easy. Henceforth he betides the village he enters on his daily search for food!"

"The man-eater is the scourge of India. For ten or fifteen years a village, lulled into false security, will forget the mourning caused by the incursions of the man-eaters. Men will get into the habit of going to their work in the fields unarmed; the women and girls become accustomed to wandering unafraid, at any hour, far from their village, to bathe in some shady pool. Then, suddenly, forgotten terrors haunt these poor folk again. In one short week ten or twelve people disappear. A man-eater is on the war path again!"

"When the population is a scattered one, deliverance is often long in coming; the neighboring jungle offers safe retreat to the destroyer. But in districts where villages are closer together the British authorities are appealed to, and a regular battle organized, in which the pursuers often take part, and the man-eater has been tracked down and killed."

"One hears of tigers whose long list of sinister exploits makes one shudder. In one district of the central provinces, for instance, one of these formidable brutes ate 32 persons in the space of 45 days; the beast was finally killed by an English officer. In another part of the provinces a tiger terrorized 12 villages for more than three months; then 2,000 armed men set themselves to track it down and destroy it, but without result. After having devoured some 50 people, however, it met its death in a curious manner. One night, in bounding over a garden fence, it impaled itself on a stake! These remarks about tigers apply also to other species; they seldom attack man until late in life, when their waning vigor renders it increasingly difficult for them to catch their more agile prey. Once they have tasted human blood they care for no other."

The State Press

Drumright Derrick: Some smart alec who seems to be in the pay of the liquor propaganda bunch has figured out that when the nation goes dry the moonshiners still can thrive, as "an ordinary still can turn out a thousand dollars' worth of liquor in a day." Yes, and a federal court can turn out a thousand dollar fine and a year in the penitentiary in five minutes! Ever think of that?

Drumright Derrick: Cut out the chatter about how hot the weather is. It hasn't been long since you were kicking about the cold, clammy days of May. Besides, these days are just making cotton goggle. And they are mighty fine preparation for cutting of prairie meadows. Also, they are putting the famous Oklahoma flavor into the Elbertas. In fact, anybody caught maligning these perfect crop-growing days ought to be deported.

Oil Found in England.

Drumright Derrick: A high grade of oil has been found by well drillers in England. This is the first time that mineral oil has been discovered in England either of quality or quantity sufficiently good to be worth considering as a real addition to the oil supply of the world.

This news is especially interesting since it is not so very long ago that American scientific men announced that the end of the world supply of oil was in sight, and that unless some other discovery or invention appeared to take its place this old planet was going to be in a bad way before long for something to light, heat and grease with.

The discovery of oil in ancient England is good evidence that man has never come very far in his exploitation of the resources of nature. In fact, it is true in pretty much the whole world that the surface is only scratched as yet, and all the worriers and the pessimists and the selfish scramblers who are hurrying and fretting for fear there is not enough of everything to go around had better take another look at old Mother Earth's cupboard.

Going Back to Farms.

Drumright Derrick: It was said, when the demobilization began, that most of the army men who came from farms would not go back to them. They had gained the spirit of adventure, and felt the lure of cities. Rural life would have no more charms for them. This idea has spread until it is generally accepted. But it is proved false by a careful survey made in army camps by the department of agriculture.

Surprising facts were discovered in a Virginia camp where nearly half the troops were farm boys. All the men discharged during three successive weeks in April were questioned by the investigators. Altogether about 5,000 were interviewed. It was found that 98.2 per cent of those who came from farms were going back to them. Sentiment for farm life was made almost unanimous by the fact that most of the remaining 1.8 per cent were not returning simply because they were disabled and unable to do heavy farm work, or because they were not farm-owners, but farm hands, and considered it too late to get employment for the season. Moreover 2 per cent of the men discharged who were not farmers expressed their intention of going on farms, so that the farms may be said to have regained more than 100 per cent of the men called from them during the war.

The preponderance of returning farmers is not so overwhelming in reports from some of the other camps, but it is evident that almost without exception the big majority are going back. In a Georgia camp, for example, out of 3,291 farmers, 2,342 announced their intention of returning to their jobs or homes in the country. In another camp 96 per cent of the farmers were doing likewise.

That is about what might be expected in view of the great interest shown by soldiers in the government's public land plans. It is a good sign for the future of American agriculture.

'Twas A LUCKY DAY SAYS MRS. O'CONNOR

HER IMPROVEMENT AFTER TAKING TANLAC WAS WONDERFUL—SHE THROWS AWAY HER OTHER MEDICINES.

"It certainly was a lucky day for me when I got my first bottle of Tanlac," said Mrs. John O'Connor, of 338 East Oldham street, Knoxville, Tenn.

"For five or six years," she continued, "I had been in a dreadfully rundown condition, was awfully weak and suffered from spells of dizziness. I had terrible nervous headaches and my stomach was so weak that I couldn't digest even the lightest kind of food. I could sleep very little and became very despondent, for I was afraid nothing could help me regain my health."

"Soon after I started taking Tanlac I began to eat better, sleep like a baby and I now feel just fine, and my steady improvement has simply been wonderful. I have gained ten pounds in weight and have thrown away all my other medicines and will stick to Tanlac in the future."

A TULSA MAN LAUDS THE HAM-RAMSAY CO.

Judge C. S. Walker, of Tulsa, was in Ada yesterday on legal business. He is just back from his old home in Brownsville, Tennessee, where he has for several weeks been enjoying his vacation and attending the Ham-Ramsay revival in that city. He said to a News representative this morning: "Ham is the greatest Biblical expositor on the evangelistic platform of the United States. No man can say too much concerning him as a preacher and a real man. Mr. Ramsay excels any man I ever saw in the management of a choir, and the work he does with his children's chorus far outstrips the stretches of the human imagination. All the churches of Brownsville are co-operating in the Ham-Ramsay revival and there is not a minister, not a member of any church in that city, has found any fault or flaw with anything that Dr. Ham has said. Your city has made no mistake in securing the services of these consecrated men for a revival campaign."

Death Valley.

Death valley is a narrow valley between the Panamint and Fennel mountains in California. It is traversed by the Amargosa river, which is usually a dry channel, though probably it was formerly full of water. The level of the valley is covered with salt, supposed to have been brought by the currents from the surrounding desert and left on the evaporation of the water. Death valley is considered to be the hottest and driest place in the United States. A temperature of 122 degrees has been observed.

Freak Tree.

We are told that in Kentucky there is a tree bearing each year a crop of walnuts and a crop of mulberries, and the curious phenomenon is accounted for by the supposition that a mulberry seed fell where a walnut lay in the ground, and the young shoots came up side by side and united their forces into one solid trunk. This supposition seems feasible from the fact that the bark of the tree is on one side that of walnut and on the other that of the mulberry.

IS HOW OKLAHOMA MAN ENDORSES SWAMP CHILL AND FEVER TONIC.

Mr. Harve Smith of Halleyville, Oklahoma, tried various chill tonics, but found nothing that equalled Swamp Chill and Fever Tonic. He says this famous remedy never failed to cure his chills.

Thousands of others who once suffered from malaria, ague and similar ailments praise Swamp Chill Tonic as strongly as Mr. Smith. For 20 years it has been the one never failing remedy.

Swamp Chill Tonic acts quickly and surely. It seldom takes more than three days to break up chills. And no purgative has to be taken with it—the medicine itself acts gently and agreeably upon the liver and bowels.

There is no Calomel in Swamp Chill Tonic—nothing but purely vegetable ingredients and iron. It is tasteless, and pleasant to take. Numerous physicians prescribe it regularly—they know it is the best remedy there is for malaria, ague, chills, fever, colds, grippe, etc. Dealers everywhere recommend and sell Swamp Chill Tonic. The price is 60 cents. Try a bottle. (Adv.)

Oklahoma Leads In Payment War Subscription!

Oklahoma having paid approximately $1,900,000, or 94 per cent, of $2,000,000 subscribed for the United war work fund, the state is now leading the whole country in the percentage of subscriptions paid, according to figures just given out by J. E. Nissley, state collector for the campaign.

Seven Organizations Unite.

The campaign was conducted last fall to raise funds for the Young Men's Christian association, the Young Women's Christian association, the National Catholic war council, the Jewish welfare board, the war community service, the American Library association, and the Salvation Army.

A sum of $2,000,000 was asked in this state and promptly was over-subscribed. But, once the subscription blanks were signed, there were those who forgot. Nissley now is engaged in the work of reminding them of this one thing needed for Oklahoma to "finish the job."

Much Money on Hand Somewhere.
Nissley has found that while 5 per cent of the subscriptions are shown to be unpaid, much of the money is on hand somewhere. In one county a large sum was found put away for safe-keeping in a cigar box, apparently forgotten. Another county which was supposed to have paid its subscription in full disclosed $500 in a bank. In still another county $20,000 was discovered on deposit in four banks. Nissley is sure that there still are other amounts deposited under similar circumstances.

Declaring that the war is not yet over for men still in the service and that the need for funds for them now is greater than ever before, Nissley now is seeking to collect the remaining 6 per cent of the subscriptions.

PICTURES OF FIGHT UNDER BAN IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 7.—The Willard-Dempsey fight pictures taken at the ringside of the championship bout in Toledo were completely rejected today by Maurice S. Hague, chairman of the Ohio board of moving picture censors. Mr. Hague was the only member of the board of three to review the pictures and it is possible that the other two members of the board will vote to permit them to be shown in Ohio. However, this is in doubt as Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, a member of the board, declared that it was entirely possible she will reject the pictures. The other member of the board, C. G. Williams, would not say how he would act.

Mr. Hague declared that "such human butchery should not be shown where our boys and girls may see it."

He stated that as the film had been rejected persons or firms showing the picture in Ohio would be prosecuted, liable to fines from $100 to $300 and a year's imprisonment.

Telephone No. 4.

LET US HAVE THE BAND.

Ada has some of the best musical talent in the state. We are especially fortunate in that direction so far as band music talent is concerned.

This, probably, is the reason the band boys got together recently and laid the floor plan for the organization of a permanent band in this city.

The musicians are ready and willing to give this civic enterprise their time and talents, for the good of Ada as well as to gratify their pride in keeping in practice and perpetuating their talents.

One would have to be a mathematician to enumerate the many things Ada needs, but we dare say that in the whole long list there is nothing, considering the cost, that we should be more enthusiastic about than a good band.

Fortunately, as we said before, Ada has a full platoon band, trained and ready for any engagement. It isn't as though we were taking a green, untrained band with all the work of preparation ahead. They are ready for business now with one exception, that is, they haven't the equipment.

We understand that they are going to ask the citizens and business men to contribute the necessary amount of money to get this equipment. This is the only way they have of raising the money, and we are informed that the amount needed will not exceed a thousand dollars.

Mr. L. A. Ellison, cashier of the Oklahoma State bank, and treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, will be the custodian of the funds, which means that not one cent of them will be dissipated or misspent.

But getting down to the point. What we really wanted to say was this: The citizenship of this city cannot afford to turn down this proposition. The amount asked for is small, indeed, and it must be raised!

When the subscription sheet passes your way, get on it! You will remember it in the years to come as the best contribution you ever made to any cause for civic betterment.

A BIRD COMEDIAN.

People generally are paying more attention to their bird neighbors than formerly, and many have learned the reward which waits for those who provide shelter, food and water for their feathered friends. Any one who remains in doubt as to the delights of closer acquaintance with the tree-people should read, mark and digest this little tale.

A certain woman who for years has watched and fed the birds in her yard noticed a red-headed woodpecker making himself at home and feeding near her door. At first she put peanuts out where he could get them, first on a little shelf on the trunk of a tree, then nearer to the house. Next she tried tossing them to him. Little by little he came nearer and nearer, and would give his sharp call if she was not in sight when he was hungry. Now when she hears him call she goes out and tosses the nuts to him, and he swoops down on his black and white wings and cleverly as any catcher on the home team he snatches the nuts in his bill as he flies and hies him away to his tree, coming back immediately for more.

When you read this you may murmur something about fairy-tales. So did the lady's husband. But he saw and was convinced, and the story is vouched for as absolutely true.

This is no tame bird, nor even chatty robin red-breast, who does everything but talk to people. It is a wild wood bird. And he is only one of the millions waiting to repay kindness and study by affording endless interest and amusement.

Congressman Tom D. McKeown sends word from Washington that the War Department has ruled that any enlisted man who was honorably discharged from the army, navy or marine corps since November 11, 1918, or is hereafter discharged, is entitled to travel pay at the rate of five cents per mile from the place of his discharge to his home, or if he prefers, to the place where he was mustered into service. For sea travel, only transportation and subsistence are furnished. Any honorably discharged man who has not received the full five cents per mile is entitled to the difference between five cents per mile and the amount per mile which was paid him. Any enlisted man who has any travel pay coming under this ruling will be supplied with a proper blank on which to make his claim, if he will address a letter to Congressman McKeown at Washington, D. C.

Death is nothing more or less than slipping back into your own subconsciousness, and so becoming greater and finer and more active—more useful, too—and with grander powers than we ever had in our limited imperfect bodies. Life is nothing but an episode in our eternal life. Death is just a change of direction then, really; that's all.—From "The Promise of Air," by Algernon Blackwood.

Crees Wonderful Caneists.

"The Ojibway, the Cree and the Montagnais are the most wonderful canoeists in the world," says S. E. Sangster, writing of "The Woods Indian" in Boys' Life. "They possess a sixth sense in rapid-running and if they say 'run it' you can safely lay a bet at odds that they will run it and come through dry—even through water the mere glimpse of which makes your hair stand up and sends chills chasing up and down your spine."

Happiness.

If we are to be happy, we must be happy now; if we are to be happy, we must be happy here; if we are to be happy, we must be happy in ourselves and not in our conditions.—Exchange.

It is awful to be a jackass and have earache.

Court News

The city commissioners in their efforts to kill out all breeding places for mosquitoes have had all the weeds around the city septic plant cut down and will continue the crusade by cutting all the weeds along the branch below the tank. The commissioners are very proud of the way the citizens generally are co-operating in keeping out disease by keeping their back yards and alleys perfectly clean.

Another sewer district is being agitated at the present time for Ada. The new district is contemplated in the section along North Broadway. If put in it will include all that section of the city where the negro population lives. Most of this property is owned by white people and it will add much to the health of the negroes and also to the value of the land to have sewers put in.

Justice H. J. Brown performed the ceremony yesterday afternoon uniting in marriage Miss Thelma McCoy of Tulsa and Mr. Frank Norvell of Tucumcari, New Mexico. The ceremony was performed in the office of the court clerk.

In the News yesterday it was stated that D. W. Swafar and Mrs. Gladys Maddox were sworn in as tax collector and deputy, respectively. Mr. Swaffar is not only tax collector of the county but is county treasurer, and it is the latter title by which he is best known.

At the meeting of the new commissioners' court yesterday afternoon, Mr. W. H. Brumley was elected chairman of the board. Mr. Brumley was the only hold-over commissioner on the board. He is one of the most popular and able commissioners the county has ever had.

Joe Watson, negro, broke loose last night and made an attack on his wife, Ophelia Watson. He will be tried in the mayor's court tomorrow morning.

GAME WITH HOLDENVILLE FOR SUNDAY

Holdenville will be the next town the Ada baseball stars will take on. The game will be played next Sunday, on the local grounds. The game was arranged today.

One thing that will be interesting in this game will be the playing of Frank Jacobs. Frank for a long time was a citizen of Ada and was one of our star pitchers. He now lives at Holdenville and will pitch against his old home town of Ada in the game Sunday. The local boys in a game of this kind will go after him with more vim than if he were a total stranger.

A meeting of the baseball directors will be held this afternoon at which time permanent officers will be chosen.

THE TOWN GOSSIP

By MILTON LESTER

THIS MORNING.
SOME FELLOW.
FROM THE country.
CAME TO town.
AND BOUGHT some things.
AT MR. Burk's store.
AND GOT to talking.
WITH MR. Burk.
AND MENTIONED the fact.
THAT HIS hair.
WAS FALLING out.
AND HE was afraid.
HE WAS going to get.
BALD HEADED.
AND MR. Burk told him.
THAT HE needn't worry.
ABOUT THAT.
AND ALL that he had to do.
WOULD BE to go.
TO WAIT'S drug store.
AND SEE Mr. Waits.
AND HE'D get something.
THAT WOULD make his hair.
GROW LIKE everything.
AND THE man thanked him.
AND FINISHED dressing.
AND WENT up the street.
TO THE drug store.
AND ASKED.
FOR MR. WAITS.
AND MR. Waits came out.
OF HIS office.
AND WENT up.

TO THE man.
AND ASKED him.
WHAT HE wanted.
AND THE fellow.
STARTED TO tell him.
AND LOOKED up.
AND GOT a good look.
AT MR. Waits.
AND HESITATED.
FOR A second.
AND ASKED him:
"IS THIS Mr. Waits?"
AND WAITS told him.
THAT IT WAS.
AND THE fellow.
LOOKED AT Waits.
SOME MORE real hard.
AND A sorrowful expression.
SPREAD OVER his face.
AND HE said sadly:
"I GUESS I'll take.
"A CHOCOLATE milk shake."
AND I guess.
THAT WAITS thought.
THAT THE fellow.
WAS CRAZY or something.
BUT I don't know.
I IMAGINE.
THAT HE had.
PRETTY GOOD sense.
AFTER ALL.
I THANK you.

ADA HIGH SCHOOL
GETS FEDERAL AID

The Ada High School has been successful in their efforts to secure an expert in agriculture and vocational training for the coming year. The man they secured is Wm. R. Curry, who will have charge of this important work commencing with the fall term of school.

The school secured the services of Mr. Curry by provision of the Smith-Hughes act passed by Congress last year. This act makes it possible for the Federal government to pay Mr. Curry $1500, and Ada pays the remainder of his salary, 750. The Ada school will also have the benefit of Miss Cameron's work again this year in Domestic Science. Miss Cameron is taking a special course in this work this summer, and receives a federal appointment as a result of it, and the federal government will pay $300 of her salary.

Mr. Hickman says they are very proud that they have succeeded in securing this federal aid and that it places the Ada school far ahead of the schools in most cities this size.

Ada Millinery Parlor
SOLD

We have bought the Ada Millinery Parlor of Mrs. Ida L. Binding, and will continue the business in its present location.

Mrs. White is an experienced Milliner, having recently sold a prosperous business in Okmulgee.

We will continue to carry a fine showing of Hats, and will at all times have a line of Millinery equal to any in the larger style centers.

An early visit is cordially solicited.

"TEMPS" FAUST IS FATALLY INJURED

Temps Faust happened to a serious accident yesterday. While attempting an attack on one of his fellow brothers, a heavy truck struck him a blow somewhat like an angered body, somewhat annihilating his constitution and upsetting his disposition, so that when his kind master gathered his crushed body in his arms, Temps, blinded by the shock of the blow, failed to recognize Dr. Faust as his friend and implanted his sharp teeth in the palm of Dr. Faust's hand, making quite a sensitive wound. Thereupon Temps was lowered to the ground and immediately he looked up into the face of Dr. Faust and realizing that he had harmed the one he loved most, hung his head and repented at the feet of the kind doctor. Dr. Faust, being of a forgiving disposition, reclaimed Temps and has given him the best of treatment since that time, but his condition is still very serious and it is doubtful if he recovers.

Temps is a very much loved member of the Faust family, having come to the hospital several months ago, at which time he was owned by Mr. Sumpter Lane, with a broken leg and, and knocked gently with his front paw upon the front door of the local hospital for admittance. After having his leg set and recovering therefrom, he has been adopted by desire upon his part as a member of the Faust family. To add still more prestige to Temps he was accepted by Mr. Lane as payment on a year's subscription for the Daily News several years ago.

Here is to Temps—a beloved dog—may he soon recover!!!

Art's Inspiration.

A famous artist, who had art classes, and forbidden smoking in his studio. One day, after being out for half an hour, he re-entered the studio suddenly and saw one student with a lighted cigarette in his fingers, which he tried to conceal. With an air of assumed playfulness the artist approached the offender and said: "A strange crayon you have there, my friend. May I ask what you propose to draw with that?" Clouds!" replied the student.

The Oslers don't take any of their own chloroform.

NO BOLSHEVISTS ARE WANTED HERE

APPLICANTS FOR CITIZENSHIP IN THE UNITED STATES COURT
AT MUSKOGEE CLOSELY
QUESTIONED.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 7.—Questions designed to keep all bolshevists or those with bolshevistic leanings from participation in the government were fired at two applicants for citizenship papers today in the United States district court. The two men—Herbert James Arbon of Tulsa and Stephen Fletcher of Muskogee—were admitted only after they had given answers that warranted Federal Judge Williams in his opinion that they would prove good citizens.

"The government just now is particularly careful not to admit those who have the least taint of bolshevism," said Naturalization Examiner Edward W. Tobin, who conducted the examinations. "The government doesn't want anyone to get the right of suffrage until it is satisfied that he has no anarchistic leanings."

No Mere Matter of Form. Formerly the simple question: "Do you favor anarchy," was believed sufficient, but now the applicants are required to pass through a long rigor of interrogations.

"Do you believe in bolshevism? Do you favor equal distribution of property among the masses? Are you against any of the principles on which the American government is founded?" were among the questions asked by Mr. Tobin.

But answers to these questions did not satisfy Judge Williams, who inquired as follows:

"You say you don't believe in the equal distribution of property among the masses, but do you believe that a majority in power, under the guise of law, should take property by taxation, which is unjust and confiscates the property?"

Same System as Reds Use. The applicants also gave satisfactory answer to this question, which hits at the system employed by the bolshevist in Russia to take over the private property and distribute it among the people.

Both of the men admitted to citizenship are from England. The applications of Gus Pandulus, William Wilson and Levi B. Basterach were dismissed because of the incompetency of the witnesses.

Nicholas Panagopoulos, who had applied for citizenship withdrew his application because of defects in the case and will make application as an honorably discharged soldier.

No-German-born residents were among those who were considered today. Only those Germans who can satisfy the government that they are loyal citizens may be admitted to citizenship.

"While we have no information as to the attitude the government will take on the question of admitting Germans after peace has been ratified, it is doubtful if there will be any change in policy," said Mr. Tobin. "Quite a few Germans have been admitted since the act was passed over a year ago, but the department of justice makes a very strict investigation before consenting to the action."

When you feel lazy, out of sorts and yawn a good deal in the daytime, you can charge it to a torpid liver which has allowed the system to get full of impurities. HERBINE cures all disorders produced by an inactive liver. It strengthens the organ, cleanses the bowels and puts the system in good healthy condition. Price 60c. Sold by Bart Smith.—Adv.

FIXED FREIGHT RATE FOR WHEAT ANNOUNCED

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8.—A fixed rate on wheat from points in Oklahoma to gulf points for export has been made by the United States railroad administration, according to a telegram received here yesterday from headquarters of the administration in Washington. This is an increase of 11 cents on the rates approved June 24. It will result in a standard price of wheat in the state of from $2.06 to $2.08 a bushel, H. C. McCord says. McCord has been working for some time on the wheat rates. He is traffic manager of the Oklahoma Shippers' association.

CAPITAL WAITING TO SEE WILSON

GREAT PREPARATIONS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR CHIEF
EXECUTIVE'S RECEPTION
TODAY.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Everything is in readiness here for the reception of President Wilson when he returns to the capitol tonight.

The decorations put up for the July 4 peace pageant are still in place and will remain so until the president is again installed in the White House. The latter has been completely renovated throughout, bears a new coat of paint and because of the president's return it has been closed to all visitors for the past two weeks.

Official sanction for the welcome here of the chief executive has been given by Joseph P. Tumulty, the president's secretary. A local organization known as the "District of Columbia non-partisan citizens' committee favoring a league of nations" whose membership includes leading clergymen and other prominent men and women, has the reception in hand, and a committee of this organization may proceed to New York to take part there in the welcome of the president. Patriotic music and several pageants will be in progress at the union station here when the presidential party arrives in town. The president and Mrs. Wilson will pass under a huge arch of roses when they leave the railroad station.

A drowsy, half-sick, discouraged feeling is caused by a torpid liver and impurities in the stomach and bowels. Prickly Ash bitters is a prompt and efficient remedy. Try it. Price $1.25 per bottle.—Gwin & Mays Drug Co.

BARNEY E. REILLY PLEASES AUDIENCE

Barney E. Reilly of Boston, the tenor-baritone who appeared in concert at the Normal last evening, gave one of the most delightful programs ever witnessed in Ada. The weather was extremely hot, and yet the house was comfortably filled with music lovers from far and near who had come to hear this wonderful artist.

Mr. Reilly sang songs in French, Italian and English. His program included everything from the classics of the opera to the popular ballads of the day. Probably the number most enjoyed was "Caro mio ben," by Giordani. His voice is one of much volume and he has it under such remarkable control that he could sing even with the softness of a whisper and be understood. The number of encores called for was so great that the artist was almost overcome with the extreme heat in his effort to please his hearers in giving the songs asked for.

Mr. Powell Weaver, who played for Miss Lucy Gates when she appeared here in the early spring, was accompanist for Mr. Reilly. He is very favorably remembered in Ada and when he appeared on the stage was greeted with much applause. The program as given last night is printed below:

I. Aria—Eri Tu che macchiavi (From the Masked Ball).....Verdi

U. S. NEWSPAPER MAN IS FREE AT COBLENZ

COBLENZ, Sunday, July 6.—Robert Minor, the American newspaper correspondent and cartoonist, who has been under detention here by army authorities, pending investigation has been released, it was learned today. No formal announcement was made but officers said the case had been dropped on orders from higher authority. It is understood that Minor will be returned to Paris, where he was arrested a month ago by the French at the request of the British. The latter refused to prosecute him, turning over certain alleged evidence to the American authorities. It is said that this was in connection with an alleged conspiracy to spread radical propaganda among soldiers within the British and American areas.

Will Be 50 Cents a Month

Beginning August 1, 1919, the subscription price of

The Ada Evening News will be

15c a week by carrier or mail---50c a month by carrier or mail, paid in advance---$5 a year by carrier or mail, paid in advance

This raise in the subscription price is necessary in order that we may meet the additional cost of issuing a larger and more inclusive newspaper. The readers now get as much news as the readers of daily papers in towns of 30,000 and 40,000 population. It costs a great deal more to produce a paper of this size and quality, and we believe the citizens of this town are willing to pay for such a newspaper.

Increased Cost of Labor

All of us thought prices would go down, once the war had stopped. Prices, however, have gone higher, necessitating higher wages, which mean a higher producing cost of newspapers. The News pays good wages, because it believes in getting good men and doing good work.

No Choice in the Matter

Since the beginning of the war, almost every daily newspaper in the United States has raised the subscription price. We have kept the price of the News the same as it was years ago, for the reason that we did not want to appear to be profiteering. The time has come when we have no choice. We must raise the price. But before raising the price, we have endeavored to make the paper better as we have made it larger.

A glance at the prices below will show what other newspapers in the same class with the Ada Evening News are getting for subscriptions—

Name of Paper—	Month	Year
The Ardmoreite60	$6.00
The Ponca City News60	$5.00
Miami Daily News45	$5.00
McAlester News-Capital60	$5.00
Okmulgee Daily Democrat65	$7.50

A comparison of the subscription rates of the Ada Evening News with the rates of other newspapers shows that the News rates are still low. During the remainder of July, subscribers will be permitted to pay up for as long a time as they desire at the old rates of 40 cents a month, or $4.00 a year. This is an opportunity for you to save money.

Has Two Meanings.

Troops is used in the plural to mean the same as soldiers, and not including in its meaning the number or whether infantry, cavalry or artillery. The word is generally used in the papers has this meaning. Therefore 2,000 troops means 2,000 soldiers. In the strict military use of the word, however, a troop is the unit of formation, consisting usually of 60 troopers, commanded by a captain and corresponding to a company of infantry.

Have Good Light.

If you work at night be sure that you have a good light. Are lights, because of their glaring rays, are exceedingly injurious. A shaded light is the best substitute at night for diffused daylight. The electric bulbs should either have a dome or a dark paper shade. A gas light composed of mantle and bulb produces a good, diffused light and when placed high enough near the ceiling does not injure the eyes.

DISABLED SOLDIER-STUDENTS ORGANIZE

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The organizations of men in training described by District Vocational Officers in their recent conference at headquarters of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, are indications of the purposes in the rehabilitation of disabled service men. The purposes of such organizations are to promote fellowship among the vocational students to encourage high standards of scholarship and to assist in every way the Federal Board and the college authorities in their efforts to make of these injured men useful citizens.

The Gamma Sigma Alpha (Government Students Association) at the State College of Iowa, located at Ames, has over 50 members all discharged disabled soldiers. The president of the club lost his left arm at Chateau Thierry, but he gained a lot of experience and is using it for the good of his fellow students. The Alvo Club is made up of Federal Board students at the State Agricultural College at Ft. Collins, Colorado. There are 20 members in this club. Other such organizations are to be found in other institutions where disabled men are being trained.

Tennessee Paper Praises Highly Ham-Ramsay Co.

During the Ham-Ramsay evangelistic campaign which has been in progress here during the past three weeks, Rev. M. F. Ham has done some of the strongest preaching ever heard in Brownsville. His sermons are the finished product, being both highly educational and deeply spiritual. Added to his great power as a speaker is his wonderful personality as a Christian gentleman. All who hear him are deeply impressed with the fact that his one thought and purpose is to serve his Master through the winning of souls.

Mr. Ham does not hesitate to mince words in his condemnation of sin and sinful practices. He strikes straight from the shoulder and with sledge-hammer blows, but there is never anything unfair or sensational. His deliverances against the modern dance have been of an uncompromising nature—strong and relentless, but they have been startlingly true and have merited the endorsement of all people who are interested in the social, moral and religious welfare of our community.

Brownsville has been afflicted with the dance evil of a malignant type for some time. Some disgraceful scenes have been reported from the local dance hall recently, and too strong language cannot be used in its condemnation.

If the churches and all wholesome influences of this community are at all interested in the welfare of our community, they will heed the warning of Mr. Ham and unite in a determination to stop once and for all this great danger to our social life and moral welfare.

There should be no let-up and no compromise in this fight. Our reputation as a moral community is at stake and those of our people who stand for clean, healthy social life cannot afford longer to countenance the modern dance. The protection of our boys and girls and the development and growth of a clean manhood and womanhood demand the elimination of this evil. With the preachers in the lead and with all self-respecting people backing them up, we can and should be forever rid of this danger to the moral growth of Brownsville.—Brownsville, Tenn., States-Graphic.

OUR ENGLISH STORES BEING DISPOSED OF

By the Associated Press LONDON.—(By mail.)—The last of the billion dollars' worth of stores purchased by the American army in England will have been disposed of on August 1 in the opinion of Major General J. C. Biddle. The American army headquarters were closed June 15 and only a small contingent of the quartermaster's department remained to co-operate with the liquidation commission in adjusting a few remaining contracts and selling supplies. Consequently by August the army will cease to have a war interest in England.

"Immediately the armistice was signed we began to cancel and adjust contracts and in this work had such hearty co-operation from the British war office that the United States has been able to clear up its contracts very advantageously," said General Biddle. "Only a few of them remain to be adjusted."

"The last property on hand consisted largely of aviation, engineer and ordnance stores. It was not deemed advisable to dispose of it too quickly and finally it was arranged that auction sales of all that was not disposed of privately should begin the latter part of June. There was demand for most of the material and our early inquiries indicated that good prices would be obtained and also that we would have little difficulty in getting rid of everything we had."

"I want to lay emphasis upon the hospitality shown by the English people toward the American soldier now that I am going home. We have been entertained and looked after officially and unofficially. The special committee of the Ministry of information which provided entertainment at camps and for men on leave vied with the American organizations in making life pleasant and the real spirit of hospitality was emphasized by the great number of English families living near American centers of activities who made strange American soldiers welcome in their homes."

Insects Preserved in Amber.

In a collection of red amber presented to the British museum, Prof. T. D. Zookerell has recognized an astonishing variety of insect forms, and has described not less than 31 new species, of which five are types of new genera. Most of them were found in a single block little larger than a man's fist, which was cut into half-inch slices, in every one of which the insects are densely crowded. The amber is from Miocene clay beds of Burma, though perhaps washed from still older deposits, and nearly every large order of insects is represented, the family of ants being a notable exception.

God of the Lower World.

In one temple of Japan the image is a Japanese conception of the god of the lower world. The figure has an unusual history. An image maker, it is said, died. When he appeared before the lord of the other world, he was told that in his lifetime he had never represented the lord of the world properly, and that he must return to earth and make a correct likeness. The figure is pointed out as the result of the order. It is so horrible with its red face and malevolent glare that he story seems plausible.

The New Life

By JESSIE ETHEL SHERWIN

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Bertha Druse purposely put herself in the way of meeting John Barker whenever occasion encouraged. She passed the time of day quite casually to all appearances, but always managed to detain him long enough to ask him a question in which lay her vivid interest:

"What do you hear from Allan?"
At the first Mr. Barker had answered with a scowl and a carping tirade against the boy who had run away from home and had made all sixes and sevens of his destiny. Some spark of humane interest in the old man, however, became revived when he learned indirectly that Allan had gone abroad a volunteer for Uncle Sam. Then with some pride he told Bertha that he had received a two-line letter from Allan. He even showed it to Bertha: "Dear Old Dad: I have cut out drinking. It's all fighting now." And such a glad, rapturous sparkle came to the eyes of the longing girl, and such a glorious flush to her fair, fresh face that Mr. Barker exclaimed: "Hello! what's this? Surely you haven't any hankering after that young scapegrace?"

"But aren't you glad that Allan has—has reformed? Oh! dear Mr. Barker, if he only comes back to the world and its old sweet ways!"

"Poetry! Sentiment!" scoffed Mr. Barker. "I haven't much faith in the boy," but Bertha fancied there was a false note to his avowed disbelief.

"He's coming home, Allan is," announced Mr. Barker one day in the armistice year. "He thinks next month," and he put out his hand to steady Bertha, for she acted as though she was about to faint. She recovered herself, however, but her lips moved tremulously as though in a mute prayer of gladness and hope.

Allan Barker had made a record for himself at the front. Not only that, but he had picked up a small fortune. He was one of a group which had surprised a party of looters among the enemy who had slaughtered half of the inhabitants of a little town and had burned down every house in sight. There had been a sanguinary fight. After it was all over Allan showed to his commanding officer a little sack filled with gold and jewels, which he had wrested from one of the foe.

"Well," observed this official, "you had better turn it in."

"To what department?" inquired Allan.

"To your own personal safe-keeping," came the reply. "Its ownership cannot be traced, it is fair jettison, we've got too much heavy fighting ahead to bother with trifles. Call it a trophy of the conflict and take it home as a souvenir."

"You bet I'll make good use of it," declared Allan reverently, and he did. And when he appeared at his native town a few months after that, surely returned warrior never vaunted such interesting mementoes of his experience abroad! For when he left the train, just at dusk, four neat-appearing, happy-faced children, ranging from four to twelve years, accompanied him.

"Allan Barker and family," was the way he registered the strange group, and the hotel landlord stared, and his motherly wife took charge of the little ones as though they were her own, when she learned that they were all that was left of a Belgian peasant family.

"I've simply adopted the four. That's my share. I'm thinking of the forlorn orphan refugees. I'm lucky having quite a snug sum to care for them," advised Allan proudly.

"Oh, isn't it just like you, Allan Barker, and no one else!" enthused the sympathetic lady. "You were always good and grand at heart, for all your wild ways."

"I wonder if dad will echo that sentiment?" said Allan. "I'm on the lookout for a mother for those little ones, and I think I know where to go to find her. Then there's a home needed. I'm going to report to dad and find out how he feels about it."

"Well, you've come back, I see," was the greeting Allan received as he stood before his father for the first time in five years.

"The bad penny returned—yes, dad!" laughed Allan. "See here, you know you're not sorry, for all that scowling face you're putting on. Come, father, shake hands and say so. I've come to stay, if you'll let me, with my four little ones."

"Your what?"

"Let me tell you a story," and Allan did. It involved the heroic resolve of a down-and-outer reformed, new-born courage, the impulse of bravery, the final determination of a worthy soul to indeed redeem the wasted past and provide for the broken lives of four little homeless waifs. And at its end John Barker broke down and buried his face in his hands and cried like a little child.

"Yes, it's home for all of you," he said. "Home! What won't it seem after these lonely years! And you must find a mother for them, Allan."

"I've planned to arrange that," observed Allan, glancing at his watch as casually as though bent on some trivial errand. "I'll see Bertha and let you know what she says," and the news he brought back an hour later convinced John Barker that the future was to be a golden one for all concerned.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. E. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 13

BAPTISM.

LESSON TEXTS—Matt. 28:18-20; Acts 8:34-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have been put on Christ.—Gal. 3:27.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Matt. 3:13-17; Acts 2:37, 38; 19:1-7; Col. 2:12; 1 Peter, 3:18-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Christ Baptized by John.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Baptism of Jesus Christ.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—The Pledge of Christian Discipleship.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Significance and Importance of Christian Baptism.

I. The Apostles' Commission (Matt. 28:18-20).

1. The authority of Jesus. (v. 18). God gave him all authority in heaven and on earth. As mediator and coming king he possessed all authority. This authority extends over all the material world, angels, wicked men, devils, and his own people. God highly exalted him and gave him a name which is above every name (Phil. 2:9). There is no other way of salvation, for the entire matter of redemption is in his hands (Acts 4:12). Since God has so highly honored him it is extreme folly to expect to be saved while disregarding him.

2. The obligation of the apostles (vv. 19-20).

(1) It was to teach, that is, make disciples of all the nations (v. 19). They were to make known to the whole world that Christ had died to save sinners and that God had committed to Jesus the redemption of the world. Those who are Christ's disciples are bound to proclaim him to others.

(2) Baptize those who believe (v. 19). This is the divinely appointed way of making a public confession of faith in Christ. The disciples must publicly take a stand for Christ. The application of water symbolizes the purifying effect of the blood of Christ and solemnly dedicates to the service of God. This baptism must be in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, showing that the believer has been brought into definite relationship to each member of the Holy Trinity.

(3) Teach the disciples obedience (v. 20). Profession is not enough. It must issue in obedience. Faith must result in works. To call Jesus "Lord" and do not the things which he says profits nothing.

3. The all-sufficient promise (v. 20). The Lord had told the disciples what would happen to them after he had gone away. He made it plain that perils of all kinds awaited them. Though the difficulties were great nothing mattered so long as they had the presence and fellowship of the all-powerful Savior and Lord.

II. The Baptism of the Eunuch (Acts 8:34-40).

1. Philip preached Jesus Christ to him (v. 35). At the invitation of the eunuch Philip joined himself to the chariot and found the eunuch reading from the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah. Beginning with this Scripture he preached Christ. He did not preach Christ as a great teacher, but as a savior who had suffered and died instead of the sinner. He preached him as one who had offered himself as a ransom for many. The fact that the eunuch, a great statesman, needed an interpreter of the Scriptures, even such a plain passage as the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, shows the absolute need of a preacher. The printed page is valuable, but there will always be the need of a preacher. The gospel needs to be experienced before one can be a witness of its saving power.

2. The eunuch requesting baptism (v. 36).

When Christ is truly preached men naturally desire to confess him in baptism. In many quarters baptism has been unduly emphasized, but in others it has been disregarded. It is highly important that an intelligent understanding of its meaning be possessed; for that of which Jesus Christ gave an example and a command is highly important.

3. Philip baptizing the eunuch (v. 38). Having secured from the eunuch the proper confession Philip baptized him. It is faith in Christ that saves, but those who have genuine faith desire to seal it in baptism.

4. The eunuch rejoicing (v. 39). Confession of Christ brings joy. Those who obey the commandments of the Lord can go on their way rejoicing.

Jesus Saves.

As a child walking over a slippery and dangerous path cries out, "Father, I am falling!" and has but a moment to catch his father's hand, so every believer sees hours when only the hand of Jesus comes between him and the abysses of destruction.—Cuyler.

Wise in Time.

"Nine-tenths of our wisdom lies in being wise in time," says a great statesman. As far as results are concerned, the wisdom that comes too late is often little better than folly. "If only I had thought of it when the chance offered, I might," is the prelude to many of our useless regrets.

Self Distrust Causes Failure.

In the assurance of strength there is strength; and they are the weakest, however, strong who have no faith in themselves or their powers.—Bove.

S. JOHNSTON PAVING SOON TO BE FINISHED

Work of laying the paving on South Johnston avenue, Ada, from 18th street to the city limits begins in earnest this week and will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible. The curbing for this paving was completed several days ago and the men went to work on the main part of the paving today.

The Paving of South Johnston is believed to be the beginning of an era of paving construction in Ada. The street on which the paving is placed is one of the prettiest residence streets in the city and being a good distance from the center of town serves to call attention to that section as a desirable residence location. Other streets will be paved as soon as Johnston Avenue is completed. This paving is on a stretch of street one-half mile in length. Gallamore & Yates are the contractors in charge of the work.

Community Prayer Meeting.

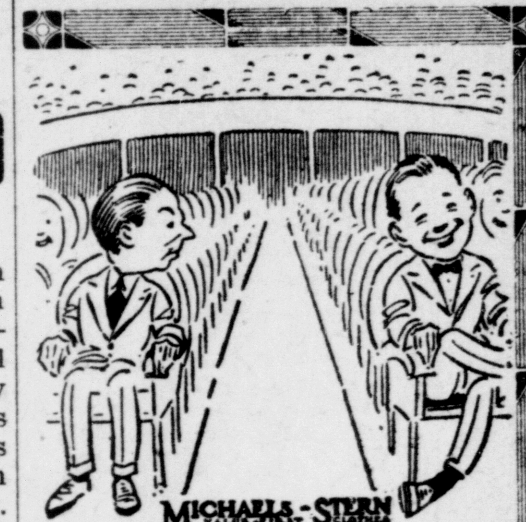

The Community Prayer Meeting this week will be held at the Tabernacle Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The leader will be Brother Duncan, the pastor of the Nazarene church, and all of the people of the entire community will participate. Just before the devotional services open there will be meetings of the various committees of the evangelistic organization. Let every committee chairman call the members of his or her committee together for any matter that may need consideration. These mid-week services have been a great blessing to us all and we trust that the meeting this week may be the best one yet held and the most largely attended. Let no matter of minor importance prevent your being at this meeting at the tabernacle.—Your Pastors.

Cooling Off Methodists.

A capable committee is at work on making the Methodist church a bit more comfortable. It is expected that before the end of the week electric fans will be installed in the church so that those who meet to worship there may enjoy the usual comforts to be had in hotels, shops, stores and banks. Let everybody be at Sunday school next Sunday and see how delightfully comfortable the church will be.—Methodist Reporters.

Episcopal Church Notice.

There will be a meeting of the Bishop's Committee in the vestry room of the church this evening at 8 o'clock.—Franklin Davis, Rector.
